FOR THE MILL WORKERS.

The Baptist State Convention Takes Action Looking Towards Shorter Hours of Work

Raleigh Special to Charlotte Observer.

The report on factory missions was read by Rev. W. A. Smith, of West Durham. It called attention to the large number of people engaged in factory work, there being 280 cotton factories in operation or in process of construction in the State. The report was discussed by the chairman of the committee, Rev. W. A. Smith, who spoke of the difficulties in factory work. He pleaded for shorter hours in factory work, claiming that the people were often so tired as hardly to be able to attend the church services, so that it is no wonder that they are fatigued and sleepy in their devotional exercises. He stated that the true nobility of life and character of many of these factory people was not fully understood and appreciated, and that no higher field of labor could be found on earth than is to be found in working for and among these people. Mr. W. B. Broughton also discussed the report, pleading for protection for factory people in the way of shorter hours and the prohibition of child labor. He said that helpful legislation is needed along with the Gospel. Rev. B. L. Hoge, of Concord, also spoke to the report. He stated that there should be from the pulpits agitation of this question of hours of work, for in some places these people are required to work thirteen hours, and that even children as young as six years of age are working in the mills. The report was then adopted.

Rev. Mr. Brosius is now assistant rector of the Church of the Ascension, Baltimore.

SHOT BECAUSE OF HIS SERMON.

Mr. Stokes Attacked the Preacher Because of His Foolish Utterances.

Williamson, W. Va., Dec. 6.—It is now evident that the shooting of Rev. John H. Wohl by the Hon. S. D. Stokes on the streets here yesterday was the result of the sermon, clear and forceful, and yet withal fearfully scathing, preached by Rev. Mr. Wohl in his church last Sunday.

Mr. Stokes is tonight improving, and it is now expected that he will recover, although his escape from death was exceedingly narrow.

Mrs. Levine late this evening made an affidavit in which she swears that the first shot was fired by Rev. Mr. Wohl after a prolonged discussion of the sermon, the cartoons and caricatures that had been used to emphasize its more striking passages.

The Rev. Mr. Wohl in his sermon depicted in vivid language the terrible results of the dance and drink, and condemned without exception every woman, married or single, who indulged in either.

This is true irrespective of denomination.

AT BUFFALO CHURCH.

A Visit by Miss Stockard, Who is Writing a History of Guilford—An Old Inscription.

Mr. J. R. Wharton carried Miss Sallie Stockard out to Buffalo yesterday—a cold day for historians, but they report a very interesting visit. It is very well known that Miss Stockard has been engaged in collecting material for the History of Guilford. Buffalo is one of the oldest churches in Middle Carolina. Inscriptions on the grave stones attracted particular attention for here are buried Regulars and Revolutionary soldiers. One was very peculiar, this: "Here lies the body of Samuel Leckey who departed this life the 11th of August, 1794, aged 50.

Death cast me here beneath this stone. The first time ever I was thrown, But when Christ comes, though now I'm low,

I will give death the rising blow."

Miss Stockard, in gathering historical data for a history of Grand Old Guilford county, is doing its citizens a noble service. Let all who can do so render her all the assistance possible.

FUNERAL OF WILLIE BROWN.

The Body Was Brought Home Last Night and Laid to Rest in Alamance Graveyard Today.

At twelve o'clock, funeral services were conducted by Dr. E. W. Smith. The body was laid to rest in Alamance graveyard, six miles southeast of town this afternoon, where the bodies of the deceased's parents are buried.

Mr. Brown was formerly a member of Westminster church of this city, and at the time of his death was a deacon in the church at Waycross, Ga., where he died. His death was caused from sudden heart failure, though he had been suffering sometime with an attack of malarial fever. Mr. Brown was a commercial traveler.

THE BOYS WHO WORE THE GRAY

GRAPHICALLY DESCRIBED BY REV. J. WILLIAM JONES.

The Generals of the Confederacy Were the Greatest Leaders the World Has Ever Seen, but the Men in the Ranks Made Them So—They Were the Bone and Brain of the South—Lecture Attended by the Veterans and the Daughters.

Dr. J. William Jones, the well known lecturer on Confederate history, talked to a small but an exceedingly interested audience in the auditorium of the Lindsay street school last night.

Dr. Jones is now pastor of the Baptist church at Chapel Hill. He is a Virginian, and entered the Army of Northern Virginia as a private, but afterwards became the regimental chaplain. He spoke last night of the Confederate soldier as he knew him, and no man knows him better. A number of members of Guilford Camp of Veterans attended in a body as did the Daughters of the Confederacy.

Judge John Gray Bynum introduced Mr. Jones in a brief impromptu talk. Among other things Judge Bynum said: "Dr. Jones is here to speak especially to the Veterans and the Daughters of the Confederacy, two of the best classes of people the Lord ever made. He is here to interest those who believe like I do, and as we all did at the time, that we were right, and have never been convinced to the contrary. The lecture you will hear will be not of the generals, but of the men who did the work, the boys in gray. They made the Confederacy what it was."

Dr. Jones has travelled all over the South since the war. He has lectured on Confederate subjects much, and was for twelve years secretary of the Historical Society. He is the author of several books also along the same line, and is a most ardent believer in the righteousness of the Lost Cause, and like all Southern men, he loves the history of its brief and glorious career. He glories in its heroes, from private to general, and his lecture is largely personal reminiscences. But it is so vivid, so devoted to the memory of the men who fell, so full of the glory of the awful drama, yet so touched with the humor and the nonchalance of the camp, that his hearers are held in closely listening attitude long past the time that ordinary public speaking lasts. Last night he spoke for an hour and a half. Dr. Jones is not partisan, but he is loyal. He asked the audience that they would not take his ardor or language as a reflection. He did not wish to disparage those who fought on the other side, but he did have the utmost contempt for those who didn't fight in the war but who have busily kept it up since. These men were described by Ben Hill as invisible in war and invincible since. He spoke, he said, for the soldiers of the Confederacy, as he had a right to do, as he was one. "Grim old Jube Early once said of me, that I was a private first, then a chaplain, and didn't forget how to be a private." The leaders of the Confederacy were the greatest men the world ever saw, but General Lee said that the glory of the Confederacy was not in the men of rank, but in the ranks, and great as our leaders were, their greatness was made possible by the men they led. What kind of men were they and where did they come from?

This question the speaker proceeded to answer, not in abstract description, but by illustration with story after story of camp life. Some of them illustrated the religious life of the soldier, many of them his bravery and daring, and all of them told of his fortitude and devotion to the cause for which he daily risked his life. He began by giving the first picture of camp, where everything was plenty, where uniforms and flags were fresh and gay, and where hope was high, and then the inevitable contrast that a year of war brought. He speaks thrillingly and gloriously of it all. Much of what he says would lose its vitality by a reduction to paper. He told also of the evidence of the soldiers work since the war.

After the lecture the old soldiers and the Daughters were presented to Mr. Jones, and there was a love feast. The gentleman is a genial, lovable soul—extremely corpulent. He says he weighed only 130 during the war. What he weighs now he did not say—but its more.

"SHAKSPER NOT SHAKESPEARE"

ANOTHER AUTHOR CREATES UP THE CONTROVERSY.

Says That William Shakespeare, the Ignorant, Careless, Stroller Could Not Have Done the Work—Yet Ben Johnson and Other Contemporaries All Attributed Them to Him.

By Wire to The Telegram.

"Shakspere not Shakespeare," is the title of a book published by the Robert Clark Company, 1900, Cincinnati. In his introduction the author, William H. Edwards, says "it is full time that reasonable men should re-examine the evidence on which they have believed that an illiterate butcher from an ignorant and bookless inland village, who flew to London in disgrace before the constable and became a servitor and later a player at a public theater, and who spent his time strolling through England with his troupe, sat down and without preparation dashed off two score of the world's best plays."

This is a specimen of the violence and acrid humor which seems to actuate the author who claims to have at last "dragged up truth" by the hair from the bottom of a recently discovered well. He further says "the English speaking people have been humbugged long enough" in this matter and he proposes at this late date to show, not who wrote the plays attributed to Shakespeare, as Donnelly vainly tried to do, but that the Stratford man, William Shakspere, did not write them. In other words he asserts that William Shakspere was but an ignorant, illiterate, strolling player, totally incapable of writing them, and that William Shakespeare was but a pseudonym for a man or collection of men who did write them under that name. He does intimate that probably Marlowe and one Robert Greene were the "joint authors" of the True Tragedy of Richard Duke of York, and parts II and III of Henry VI.

His main proposition on which he relies for proof of his fanciful theory is that "William Shakspere, the player, could not possibly have written them;" therefore somebody else must have done so.

The syllogism is as follows:

Certain plays attributed to Shakespeare were written. William Shakespeare, the Stratford man, could not possibly have written them. Therefore they must have been written by some one under the assumed name of William Shakespeare. The first premise will be cheerfully granted. The difficulty is with the second. In the 500 pages of his book he has signally failed to show a motive for the assumed name, or that William Shakspere, son of John Shakspere, was incapable of writing them, or that any of his contemporaries denied that the Stratford man wrote them. In support of his proposition that William Shakespeare could not have written them, he says: "He was descended from a long line of ignorant ancestors, that he lived till grown in an obscure bookless village without school privileges, that he was a wild, wayward youth of vicious habits, possessing not one accomplishment or characteristic that would help him to write these plays, or plays of any sort—not even the manual art of writing, and so on ad nauseam. He even makes the astonishing statement that there is no proof whatever that he ever learned to read. And yet he admits that he was a successful player, and manager and part owner of the Globe Theater and became a rich man before he died at the age of fifty-two years. The unlettered man who did this must have been quite as wonderful a being as the author of Hamlet or Macbeth. His book is full of inference, conjecture and unwarranted and baseless assumptions. Admitting Shakespeare's early unfavorable environment we know that genius soars above and beyond difficulties and obstructions—that genius, such as must have been the writer of these plays, was uncontrolled—perhaps aided and strengthened by adverse surroundings. Of Shakespeare's real life we know almost nothing. His contemporaries, Ben Johnson, Beaumont, Fletcher, John Davies, Marlowe, and scores of others who knew Shakespeare, the player and poet, attributed most, if not all, the plays bearing his name, to the Stratford Shakespeare, and never dreamed of any other author than Will Shakespeare, the Bard of Avon. It was reserved for the mischievously fertile imagination of such men as Edwards, Donnelly and other cranks to conjure up an airy nothing, a bodiless creation, as fanciful as an infant's dream, to gain a little cheap notoriety for originality by attacking a long settled belief that

Next to the Consumer is where we stand in the lumber business. At the kicking spot, as it were, in regard to prices.
First comes the owner of the timber. He just woke up to the value of it and wants double last year's prices. Then the sawmill man. He has not been making a fortune and thinks now he should share a little in the general prosperity.
They say to us: "We must have so much for our trees and work." After a while it is "up to you." Don't kick. You don't suppose we have nerve enough to put up prices unless they had first been put up on us. No, indeed. But prices are NOT high. They have been too low and are just now getting reasonable. Your children will be glad to build at double the price it now costs you. It is a trite, but true saying, if you want to build, "Now is the time."
And ours is the place to get the stuff.

Shakespeare wrote the plays of Shakespeare. John Milton, who was seven years old when Shakespeare died, wrote a splendid epitaph in 1630 "on the admirable dramatic poet W. Shakespeare." Again in L'Allegro, written two years later, he wrote these lines:

"Then to the well trod stage anon,
If Johnson's learned sock be on,
Or Sweetest Shakespeare, Fancy's child,
Warble his native wood notes wild."

Milton who was almost contemporary with Shakespeare believed he was the author of the works attributed to him. We are at liberty to take our choice of witnesses. Ben Johnson, Milton, and hosts of contemporaries on the one side, and Edwards, Donnelly, and some few other cranks on the other, at a distance of three centuries from the time of the man they are vainly trying to down. But like Banquo's Ghost, he won't down at their bidding.

ATTRACTING ATTENTION.

The proposition spoken of in last Saturday's Telegram to raise $1,000 for a colonial monument for the Guilford Battle Ground park is attracting attention and we have no doubt that it will be successful. Our people must know that that they have one of the historical spots of the whole country, and too much money cannot be spent in putting up substantial monuments that will not only commemorate the deeds for which they stand but will be a credit to this community, a source of pleasure and interest to people from all sections of the country for years to come. The Guilford Battle Ground is a spot of which we are all proud, and of which we will yet be prouder when we have done what can and should be done.

We are satisfied that the $1,000 will come. Whose name shall next be added to the list?

We note that the great religious bodies of North Carolina have been taking notice of such matters as labor and school laws, the proposition for a reformatory, the care of the insane, and kindred subjects. These bodies are the highest authority in their respective churches. If they turn aside to take notice of such matters, why may not preachers preach on such subjects? The church maintains orphanages and plants schools, and does many other things beside preach the gospel.

Father and Son in Georgia Who Think Nothing of Being Stung by Reptiles.

A gentleman from northern Georgia, whose statements cannot be doubted, told a story of a family, at least father and son, almost incredible. They live near the Durham mines on the Sand mountain and are named Wilson. The remarkable thing connected with them is an entire absence of fear of snakes, even of the most venomous description, and their immunity from any evil effects from the bites of the deadliest reptile, says the Chattanooga News.

The father and son came to the mines not many days ago, according to the statement of this gentleman, the son with a large copperhead, one of the deadliest of Georgia's many deadly snakes, coiled in his cap on top of his head. The father had a large rattlesnake, about five feet long, in his bosom next to his skin. They seemed no more afraid of them than if they were pet mice, and after putting these strange pets upon the ground this extraordinary pair, in order to prove their lack of fear, provoked the snakes until each was bitten in the arms and legs a number of times.

No ill effects whatever were manifested, and the man told the narrator that no snake bite had the slightest effect on him. He and his son can take up the most deadly snakes, such as the copperhead, rattlesnake and moccasin, without any thought of possible snake bites, other than the slight pain naturally experienced.

The man had no explanation to offer, saying that he has been that way since he can remember. Physicians try to explain it by saying that they have become proof by continuous bites and inoculation, somewhat in the same way that inoculation with smallpox virus or vaccination protects against contracting smallpox. But this can hardly be true, if the man is to be believed, since he states that he has enjoyed immunity since his earliest childhood, and the son, a small boy, is also immune and has been all his life.

The case is one which might be profitably investigated by physicians and scientific men. A few such cases have been told of before, but vaguely and indefinitely, but this is vouched for by such undeniably good and reliable authority that there can be no possible doubt of its truth.

The informer is positive that the poison fangs of the snakes exhibited had not been extracted, and he is equally positive that there was no deception practiced. After submitting to the bites the man and the boy both showed their hands and legs, and the small punctures with the blood exuding therefrom were seen by dozens of people.

W. C. T. U. DEPARTMENT.

[CONDUCTED BY THE LOCAL UNION.]

The Y. W. C. T. U. of south Greensboro enjoyed a "Calico Social" at the home of Mrs. M. E. Cartland not long ago. The invitations ran thus:

"All ladies invited in this town
Requested to wear a calico gown,
And gents a calico tie
Or pay a fine ere they say good bye.
To sit in a corner still as can be
Is against the rules you'll surely see.
A fine of five cents
For each offense.

Decorations of calico adorned tables curtains and sofas. Recitations and music were the introductory exercises. This was followed by a photograph puzzle and other games interspersed with social converse. Pledge cards and white ribbon bows were conveniently near. Such socials or parlor meetings are refining in their influence and tend to increase the interest of the young people in the Y. W. C. T. U.

VOTE AS YOU PRAY.

Every loyal Christian prays for the destruction of the saloon and his ballot should always go in the same direction. Brewers, distillers saloon keepers and bummers will never vote for any party committed to the destruction of the liquor traffic. They all vote tax and license party only. It is a reproach to any Christian to pray against the saloon and then turn in and vote with the brewers, distillers, saloon men and even bums to support tax and license party which is the life of the traffic and keeps the saloon in politics. When all tax and license parties are defeated the saloon will be as dead as slavery today. You have but one vote, let that vote be registered against the saloon. God hears prayers, but the government hears only ballots. What will your ballot be?

WHAT DRINK DID.

A lady in Boston says: "A two-dollar bill came into the hands of a relative of mine which speaks volumes on the horrors of strong drink or the traffic in it. There was written in red ink on the back of it the following: 'Wife, children and over $40,000 all gone, and I alone am responsible. All has gone down my throat. When I was twenty-one I had a fortune. I am not yet thirty-five years old. I have killed my beautiful wife who died of a broken heart, have murdered my children with neglect. When this bill is gone I do not know where I can get my next meal. I shall die a drunken pauper. This is my last money and my history. If this bill comes into the hands of any man who drinks, let him take warning from my life's ruin.'"

OIL UNDER THE SEA

New and Radical Departure in a Great Industry.

Development of Submarine Wells Was Brought About by Peculiar Circumstances—Strange Ocean Field.

Drilling wells in the sea is the latest and most remarkable, as well as the most picturesque, feature of the great crude oil industry. This new and radical departure, a most difficult and expensive undertaking, to say the least, has been successfully carried out at Summerland, Cal., the only place where it has ever been attempted, and there the precious brown fluid is now pumped from beneath the Pacific ocean at the rate of about 100 carloads per month, from scores of holes, while many more wells are being bored, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The development of this remarkable field was brought about by peculiar circumstances, and commenced but a few years ago, when the oil industry had begun to boom in the east. The first wells were drilled on the bluff, where oil had been discovered 20 years previously in sinking for water and where there are still many good producers. But Summerland was a beautiful place, a quiet little colony of spiritualists, and they opposed the advent of greasy and unsightly derricks on the hills. Besides, it was observed that wells were better the nearer they were sunk to the ocean, and consequently the operators began to crowd each other toward the water line. Finally, S. W. Knapp, of Santa Barbara, conceived the plan of getting ahead of all his competitors by building a wharf-like structure along the beach and drilling out where the Pacific's breakers roll. The expense was heavy, but the well proved to be a "gusher." Others followed Knapp's example, going farther and farther out until to-day there are dozens of wharves extending a thousand feet into the sea, connected by structures running parallel with the beach. And on these wharves, often so near each other as to be almost crowded, are the derricks—large ones for drilling and smaller ones for pumping—and all in use.

Operations are greatly facilitated by the fact that the oil strata, of which there are two, lie only from 125 to 250 feet below the surface. Drilling is carried on in practically the same manner as on land, the only obstacle encountered, after the extensive preliminary work of building wharves and getting machinery out upon them is done, being the water. Until the hole is well begun that obstacle is great, but it is overcome by means of casing, and operations are carried on readily in 20 feet. The cost of drilling at the present time is about $1 per foot, though some is done as low as 85 cents. When the shallowness is considered, it will be seen that on the whole the total cost of these wells will compare very favorably with those elsewhere and on land. But in the improbable event of a violent storm, such as sometimes travels along the Atlantic coast, all traces of this novel oil field—wharves, derricks and machinery—would be swept away in a minute, and the loss would be enormous.

As to the extent and productiveness of this strange ocean oil field, an idea may be gleaned from the following figures: There are nearly 300 wells, and the average output per day is said to be about 25 barrels, or a total of 7,500 barrels. The product is of high grade and sells for an average price of 90 cents a barrel, which means a total of over $6,000 per day, or about $180,000 a month. Much of the oil goes under long contracts to the immense Oxnard beet sugar factory, while thousands of barrels are shipped to San Francisco at short intervals.

The cost of pumping a well is only about 30 cents per day. To illustrate how closely the derricks stand, it may be stated that the Sea Cliff Oil company, producing 3,000 barrels a month, has a wharf 800 feet long and 19 wells. The Treadwell company has the longest wharf, extending 1,200 feet from the shore, with a pumping well at the extreme end and 18 others at intervals. And there are a dozen other concerns with numerous wharves. Much oil is necessarily wasted under the peculiar conditions which prevail, and this, dripping upon the water, has the effect of making a considerable patch of old ocean as calm and smooth as a land-locked bay, adding much to the striking oddity of the scene. Often when new wells are opened the gas pressure is so strong that streams of oil spurt out upon the water until the surface is black, in strange contrast with the distant blue.

Nocturnal Heliographing.

Gen. Greely, of the signal service, has received word from the Philippines that communication has been established between the islands of Cebu and Bohol by means of acetylene gas and heliograph. The bright light produced by the gas is reflected by mirrors, just as the sunlight is used in ordinary heliographing.

8086—Ladies' Shirt Waist.
32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inch bust.

LADIES' SHIRT WAIST, NO. 8086.

In the new shirt waists tucks and plaits are just as important features as they were last season.

This attractive model is developed in shell pink Laundowne and stitched in a darker shade of the same color. It is mounted on a fitted lining which closes in the center front.

The backs are plain across the shoulders and drawn down close to the waist line, where the fullness forms in small plaits.

The fronts close with fancy buttons and buttonholes worked through the double hem. Narrow box plaits alternate with clusters of tucks, which are stitched down from shoulder to belt. The plaits are flatly pressed for a short distance, the fullness forming a slight blouse over the narrow black velvet girdle.

The collar fastens at the left side with a button and buttonhole similar to those used down the front. The two piece sleeves have comfortable fullness on the shoulders distributed in fine gathers, and are completed flaring cuffs, machines stitched.

If a more dressy effect is desired the collar and cuffs may be made of velvet.

Attractive shirt waists in this mode may be developed in taffeta, foulard, India silk, cashmere, Henrietta, poplin or French flannel.

To make the waist in the medium size will require three and three-fourths yards of twenty-two inch or two and three-fourths yards of twenty-six inch material. The pattern, No. 8086, is cut in sizes for a 32, 34, 36, 40 and 42-inch bust measure.

THE TELEGRAM will receive and forward orders for all patterns described in this column. The price is only ten cents for each pattern to cover cost of mailing and handling. In ordering fill blank below and send to The Telegram office:

Nervous Depression.

Nervous Depression is a condition that shows itself particularly during hot weather when ordinary work seems to cause extreme wear and tear on the nervous system. It can be overcome by restoring healthy digestion and resting the tired brain and nerves.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

is made from the salts extracted from the juices of fresh pure fruits and when used as directed, restores normal digestion and improves nutrition. Abbey's Salt is the rational remedy for nervous depression and brain lag, and those who use it regularly are never so troubled.

Sold by most druggists, or sent by mail.
25c., 50c. and $1.00 per bottle.

The Abbey Effervescent Salt Co., 9-15 Murray St., N. Y.
Booklet free on request.

Abbey's Salt has been most beneficial in cases of depression, derangement of the stomach and liver, and above all, helpful after severe operations, to every patient. It has been recommended by the doctors of the Medical College, with whom we are connected.
Rev. John C. Cook, Chaplain, St. Joseph's Hospital, New York, Dec. 29, 1899.
"I have had most excellent results in the treatment of Gastritis with your Effervescent Salt, and also in cases of sleeplessness. In cases of nervous prostration with nausea I find that a few small doses will give immediate relief and continued use has effected a cure in every case. In Constipation I have had remarkable results from a daily dose, and in Dyspepsia most beneficial action and ultimate cures have been effected."
J. C. STREET, M.D.

DR. JOHN HAYS, Cincinnati, O., states: "I have obtained excellent results from Abbey's Salt in cases of Constipation and believe it is unequalled as a mild and efficient laxative."

RHEUMATISM - CATARRH - DIS-EASES CURED BY B. B. B.

It is the deep-seated, obstinate cases of catarrh and rheumatism that B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) cures. It matters not what other treatments, doctors, sprays, liniments, medicated air blood purifiers, have failed to do, B. B. B. always promptly reaches the real cause and roots out and drives from the bones, joints, mucous membrane, and entire system the specific poison in the blood that causes rheumatism and catarrh. B. B. B. is the only remedy strong enough to do this and cure and so there can never be a return to the symptoms. Don't give up hope, but try B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) or 3 Bs.

For sale by druggists and Howard Gardner, in Greensboro, at $1 per large bottle, or 6 large bottles (full treatment) $5. To prove our faith in B. B. B. we will send a trial bottle free to sufferers, so they may test the remedy at our expense. Address Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga.

WINE OF CARDUI

WOMEN WHO WORK.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 12. Though only 19 years old, I suffered from pains and female troubles two years. Last spring I got so bad I had to quit work. I had to support myself, and could not afford a high-priced doctor. I got one bottle of Wine of Cardui and that made me feel better. Have now used several bottles and am well. My mother used the Wine for Change of Life and was greatly relieved.

MISS MARGARET WALSH.

Wine of Cardui

Many girls and women find it necessary to earn their own living in various kinds of employment. Their work is often so hard and confining that the health breaks down. Their delicate constitutions are unfitted for tiresome tasks. Weakness nearly always makes its appearance in the peculiarly delicate womanly organs. Constant standing on the feet, and coming and going at the beck of a superintendent or foreman, induces falling of the womb, leucorrhoea, headache and backache. The pay of women workers is often so notoriously small that when sickness comes they have no money to engage skillful physicians. To them Wine of Cardui is truly a blessing. It cures them of their ills at a small cost, and they can act as their own physicians. No doctor can do as much for "female troubles" as Wine of Cardui.
